SUBJECT.—Seamen's Strike in Japan—Revalidation of import licences

No. 2/ITC(PN)/66.—It has been reported that the recent Seamen's strike in Japan ports which started from 28th November 1965 has not been settled finally.

2. In order to facilitate the shipment of goods from Japanese ports against the import licences which may have expired by the end of November and December 1965, it has been decided that the validity period of all import licences affected by the strike should be extended up to 28th February, 1966.

3. Importers are informed that applications for extension of validity of licences in such cases may be made to the concerned Licensing Authority who will decide each case on merits in the light of the documentary evidence furnished by the applicant.

P. SABANAYAGAM,

Chief Controller of Imports and Export.
